CHICAGO CHILDREN GO HOME TOMORROW; VACATION DAYS END

Thirty-Three Happy Youngsters Leave Thursday Morning After a Memorable Two Weeks in Country.

Vacation days in the country, where grass is green, flowers are bright, and nature holds a thousand and one wonders for eager youngsters are ended for the thirty-three fresh-air children from Chicago, who have been entertained in Rock county homes for the past two weeks through the efforts of the philanthropic department of the Summer Club of Household Economics.

Quartet of "Fresh Air" Youngsters.

The group of happy kiddies will leave tomorrow morning at ten-thirty, taking with them vivid memories of the best time ever.

Those who have taken care of the children during the two weeks will be able to see them depart, so real has been the small guests' appreciation of even the smallest things that have been done for them. Many of the women have received letters from the children in Chicago, filled with thanks and gratitude that their little ones are being given a taste of the joys of the country with its pure air and delightful sunshine. There is one of the children who has not won the heart of those who look after him, and the smiling childish appreciation will repay over and over again for time, work and expense.

A picnic was held for the children yesterday afternoon on the lawn of the H. A. Palmer home on Logan street, at which twenty-seven of the little visitors and a dozen or more women who have charge of them were present. It was a sort of farewell function and it was most happy occasion. There were games and after that came the "eat from bulging picnic baskets, but finest of all were the ice cream and bananas.
A "trek" furnished by Miss Josephine Carle, Cardini was donated by the Fudge candy store.

Not a few of the youngsters will return with a new waist or a new dress, generously provided by some Janesville friends. The time has gone all too quickly and it will be with reluctance that goodbyes are said at the train tomorrow.

NO CHANGE IS MADE IN RATE DIVIDING AUTO LICENSE FEES

Legislature Fails to Make Change in Percentage Paid to State and Counties.

Much ado was made early in the legislative session to change the automobile laws, particularly in respect to the distribution of the license fees. At the wind-up it is found that the legislature has not changed the distribution of the funds remains exactly as it was, 75 per cent to the county of origin and 25 per cent to the state highway fund, all to be used for highway regulation outside of cities and incorporated villages, after the cost of administration of the law by the office of the secretary of state is deducted.

One of the new laws provides that any person who drives an auto vehicle on a public highway while intoxicated shall be subject to a fine not to exceed $100 or to imprisonment from five days to three months.

Protects Garage Owners.
Another act provides that a garage keeper who keeps posted conspicuously a few days may have a lien on any auto vehicle left to be cared for practically the same as the hotel keepers' lien.

The speed limit law was amended to read eight miles faster than eight miles per hour through the grounds of any county or state hospital or poor farm.

Cities and villages are given authority to enforce ordinances regulating automobile traffic not in conflict with the general law. Police officials are given the right to exceed the speed limit in pursuit of criminals or offenders against the law.

The license fee remains as it was,
$5 for an automobile, $2 for a motorcycle and $10 for a dealer, including four cents of state fees.

Joseph Smith, all witnessed the American League base ball game at Chicago Sunday.

Engines 790 and 1047 have been turned over to the Madison division.

Thomas Lawson has returned from an extended automobile trip which he took during his vacation. Tom has been gone for two weeks and covered a good distance with his car.

Dave and Arch Cunningham, and Stanley Sylvester Garbutt, were over Sunday visitors at Basford.

Frank Barch has returned from Winona where he spent a few days.
He leaves soon for his week's vacation and expects to go west, his chief point being Shadow, Nebraska.

Jerry Lindley, Archie Cunningham, Stanley Garbutt attended the K. of C. picnic at Yost Park Sunday.

Joseph Smith and Roy Gessindorf, are located at the St. Paul shops, where they have been helping repair
some broken machinery.

Jerry Lindley expects to take his vacation soon. He will travel to Minneapolis for a short stay.

carnival, left Watertown yesterday morning and passed through here its way to Beloit. Engines 178 and 748 did the work.

C. M. & St. Paul R. R.
Three engines from Milwaukee and two from Madison arrived here last night and were kept here to be sent to Beloit, where they helped move the Barnum-Bailey circus to Madison.

A new super-heater engine, 4351,
arrived yesterday to help transport the Gollmar Bros. circus from Stoughton to Shullsburg Friday.

Engineers William Wilkinson of the Brookfield branch has resumed his work after a few days lay off. Engineer Kallaher took his place during the absence.

Round House Foreman Allen was called to Milwaukee Monday on business.

The work train was kept busy on the Mineral Point division for a couple of days, last week near Brodhead and will do about two weeks work on the R. S. W. division now.

Engine 1157, the Rockford switch engine, is here for repairs while 1111 is taking its place.

Engine 6100 is now on the dog run in the place of 7139.

Engineer Kober is laying off for a few trips.

Dan Warden took a trip to Edgerton yesterday, being called there on business.

Extra coaches are steadily piling up in the local yards. The fair specials, which will be sent out soon on the Mineral Point division. They will cover the Mineral Point, Platteville, Darlington and Monroe fairs.

Light Signals on the St. Paul.
The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul has placed an order with the Union Switch & Signal Company for material for 150 automatic block signaling, which will be installed by company forces on the Rocky Mountain division in Montana, the district which is now being electrified. The installation will consist of changing two existing d.c. sections from Lenett to Three Forks, 78.5 mi.

Plans have been outlined for the first season of actual construction of the United States Government Railroad in Alaska. As announced in the Railway Age Gazette of April 23, 1915, the route adopted extends from Seward on Rebarction back across Kenai peninsula and the head of Cook inlet, ascending the valley of the Susitna river, crossing the Alaska mountains through Broad pass and then descending the Tanana river to Fairbanks, a total distance from Seward of 471 miles. From Seward to the head of the Turnagain Arm of Cook inlet the road follows the line of the Alaska Northern, which the Government purchased.

Safety First Suggestions.
J. J. Sheehan (N. & W.).—When the delicate construction of the working parts of the pneumatic motor and hammer and the narrow margin between inefficiency are considered, it will be found that there are no tools in the shop that receive harsher treatment.

Facilities must be provided for the removal of water and dirt from the air before it enters the pneumatic machine. The removal of water can be accomplished by having a suitable sized settling tank provided with a drain valve, close to the point of operation. The most effective strainer for keeping the dirt out of the tool that made of a double thickness of muslin placed in the air back of the tool. The pneumatic tools must be kept properly lubricated.

Why can a railway be run more safely in April and June than in other months of the year? This is suggested by Mr. Richards, chairman of the Chicago & North Western central safety committee, in a report which was noticed last week, page 209. The same suggestion was found in the train-accident record for the month of April, printed in the Railway Age Gazette of May 21, page 1036. The general fact has been evident from a long series of accident records. There have been a great notable train accidents in the United States during the past 20 years, but only three of the first magnitude, occurred in the month of April. Good weather, a moderate volume of traffic and a minimum number of inexperienced trainmen are three elements in which April often, or usually, has an advantage over the other months of the year. The individual appeals quite definitely to the individual officer and the individual employee.
He aims to make the matter personal.
You cannot control the weather; but you can take more care to provide against injury to persons or property when weather conditions are adverse.
A moderate volume of traffic tends to make work easy, all around; but why not, in the easy times, train yourself to perform a larger share of your duties automatically, so that when the rush comes on you will not get "rattled"? Knowing the advantages of experience and the benefits from being able to perform all operations with tried men, who not to more pains to instruct new men, systematically? Mr. Richards has opened up a broad subject, one embracing a hundred questions for superintendents, trainmen, conductors, and all hands.
He is not proposing a new problem,
but his report suggests the attacking of old ones from a new angle. At his best the engineer, the conductor, the track repairer does everything safely not only in April but in February, in spite of the cold. At his best he avoids errors and accidents in rush times as well as in slack. Mr.

Richards challenges him (and every one) to be at his best all the time.

Conductor and Mrs. D. P. Davey have returned to the city, following a short outing at Lake Waubesa.

Conductor James Sollinger of the Mineral Point division left yesterday morning for Darlington, near where for the next two months he will recuperate on a farm. Conductor Sol-linger has been in poor health for some time and plans to get lots of fresh milk and pure country air.

Yardmaster J. J. Kelly resumed his duties yesterday morning, after his annual vacation.

The death of extra conductor Frank Blackford of the M. P. division at his home at Juda Sunday, was a surprise to local railroad men. Although in poor health for some time Blackford was in the city early last week greeting old acquaintances, of which he had many among the boys here.

Agent Fred Zimmerman and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keener of Madison have left for a trip through the west. They will visit both California exhibitions and other points of interest.

Tuesday's Markets.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Yesterday's hog market after a steady to higher start, finished flat with a few cents in the pen-
s. Free buying on speculative activity, and lower prices for provisions were weakening factors.

Heavy packing swine closed 10c lower than Monday. Swift drove pragging 311 lbs. sold $8.19, lowest since February, 1912, and lowest August in eight years. Fancy light reached $7.80 early yesterday.

The closing cattle trade yesterday in anticipation of large receipts today, was weak to 10c lower. Sheep declined 25c, while lambs sold steady to 10c lower than Monday. Best lambs quotable at $8.60.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $6.80, against $6.65 Monday, $6.78
Saturday and a week ago, $8.84 a year ago, $8.01 two years ago, and $8.34 three years ago.

Beef cattle and butcher stock at the start yesterday sold steady, but later prices were mostly 10c lower. Steers, 1864 lbs. sold at $9.00, and 1434 lb. steers at $9.50. Bulk of fat steers went at $3.25@9.25. Calves strong to 25c higher. Quotations:

Choice to fancy steers.....$8.75@10.15
Poor to good steers..... 4.50@ 7.50
Yearlings, fair to fancy..... 7.10@10.20
Fat cows and heifers..... 3.20@ 4.80

Heavy Hogs Sell Lower.

Good light hogs averaged steady yesterday, while some "big" packers sold as much as 15c lower late in the day.
Armour brought a drove of 250-lb.
butchers at a cost of $6.21, while the Anglo 254-lb. packers cost $6.20. Quality poorer than usual. Receipts several thousand below expectations. Quotations:

Bulk of sales.....$6.20@7.00
Heavy butchers and shipping..... 6.60@8.95

Light butchers, 190@250 lbs..... 7.10@7.70

Stags, 80 lbs. dockage per head..... 5.50@5.90

Lambs Again Sell Off.

Lamb prices have declined every day since August 9, when best western sold at $9.50. Yesterday's late top was $8.60. Sheep sold 25c lower than Monday and 50c below last week's close. Quotations:

Lambs, common to fancy.....$7.65@8.60
Lambs, poor to good cuts..... 7.30@7.80
Yearlings, poor to best..... 6.00@6.90
Wethers, poor to fancy..... 5.60@6.10
Ewes, inferior to choice..... 3.25@5.50
Bucks, common to choice..... 3.75@4.50

JANESVILLE MARKETS.

Reports from all over the state indicate that new barley and rye are in very poor condition. The grades of poor quality and the only reason the farmers can present is too much rain. The corn crop this year is going to be a frizzle according to the reports handed in by Wisconsin experts. The cold snap now prevailing is putting the finishing touches to the failure. Oats, what there are of them, are not of a good quality, and the local markets are suffering a scarcity. The new barley is discolored and poor grade. Dealers fear heating if they bin the grain, it looks as though barley would be nothing but feed this year. Too much rain is the cause of this condition, as well as that of all other grains.

Straw, Corn and Oats: Straw,

PRIZE RING SOON TO HOLD INTEREST OF SPORTING WORLD

Big Matches for the Fall Beginning to Create New Interest in the Prize Ring.

Affairs in the prize ring are beginning to liven up during the present week and before many moons boxing will be back in its place after the annual summer lay-off. This week's schedule of bouts holds several interesting matches that will be a forerunner for the bigger ones to follow.

A new champion in any one of the divisions would stir up added interest and give boxing a new birth for the fall and winter season. Tonight's fight between the sturdy Indianapolis lightweight, who has been an in and out among the cream of the lightweights, clashes with Matty Reid, who has won twelve rounds at Boston. The battle should be a close one, as Reid is a fighter of the class who is popular because he fights with his best zeal when in the ring.

Friday night, Johnny Ertel, the St. Paul bantam fighter, who has been primed for the title from Kid Williams, is to battle Eddie Coulton for ten rounds. The St. Paul promoter came out a big loser in their first attempt to put boxing in the city. Ertel, who did not bid so high this trip, Ertel has been trimmed but once, and this was down in a strange land, New Orleans. If Ertel comes through his battles in the middle west this year, where he is a favorite, he will probably be hooked up with Kid Williams this winter.

When Leach Cross and Johnny Griffiths step to it in New York, the Gotham fight lovers will turn out en masse. Cross recently gave out his swan song for retirement, but the lure of gold and the love of the glove game drew him back. There would be a bunch of lightweights who were sorry to learn of his new move, but the fans in general are mighty glad to see the New York dentist come back. Griffiths has a wonderful record behind him and will probably outpoint Cross. In the fall season, which will be Reid's second or third year, the best of the glove wielders will get into action, including Kid Williams, Johnny Kilbane, Freddie Welsh, Charlie White, Jim Coffey, Jimmy Clubb and Mike Gibbons. The biggest match on the schedule so far is that million dollar money grabbing affair between Gibbons and McFarland on September 1st. The result of the match from a financial standpoint bids fair to pay an important part in the future of the game. If the promoters fall down in making the money necessary to pay the two principals the $12,500, it will mean the obituary to the big guarantee for the money grabbing boxers. One thing many puzzle over is why Packey McFarland should be paid $2,000 more than Gibbons considered a champion.

Counting the lightweights who may become champions during the boxing season, it is found that all the present title holders are in danger of the laurels. Kid Williams looks good to hang on to his crown for another year without Johnny Ertel taking it away from him and this is doubtless a reason for his popularity. Williams is said to be taking on weight fast and may soon be forced into a higher division.

In the featherweights Kilbane may have an earnest time to keep on top of K. O. Chaney gets his chance at him. Outside of the Baltimore wonder, there is not another featherweight who can hold a candle to Kilbane in a tight box at least.

There promises to be something stirring, however, in the lightweight division, for Freddie Welsh appears to be on the edge of the break and there are half a dozen lightweights clamoring for a chance against him. First comes Willie Ritchie, American champion, but Ritchie is playing hog for the money, forgetting that he is a champion. The next is a big purse when he lost his title in London. Charlie White is due for his consideration and along comes Milburn Saylor, Johnny Dundee, Joe Dunne, Griffiths and Joe Dunne. Jack Britton has been unable to get a match and reports have it that he is too heavy for the limit weight.

In the welter weight division, Solad Barfield, credited with facing Gibbons for ten rounds, and of course the outcome of the McFarland-Gibbons match will tend to decide just what place Packey stands. The entry of Les Darcy, the Australian who knocked out Eddie McGearty, has stirred up fresh interest and there are half a dozen welterweights appearing on the front that look equal to jar Jess Willard, but the American fans would like to see the giant champion battle just to show that he has the right stuff.

Milwaukee promoters are waking up from their summer's sleep and boxing talk is buzzing around the Cream City at a lively rate. One promoter is trying to land Dundee to battle Ritchie Mitchell, Milwaukee's champion lightweight for a September bout, probably on Labor Day.

Macon, Ga., training camp for several big league clubs in recent years, probably will be without a professional team of its own next season, due to lack of interest in the class of ball played.

GUY DEERING WINS AT CHICAGO SHOOT

Columbus Crack Shot Wins National Amateur Title at Double Target.

Charles Newcomb, of Philadelphia, won the national amateur championship at single targets, with a sixteen yard rise, yesterday at the Grand American handicap shoot held at Grant Park, Chicago. Newcomb broke 99 out of a 100, missing his 96th bird. A. B. Richardson of Dover, Del., and R. A. King of Delta, Colo., were runners-up with scores of 98.

Guy V. Deering, the Wisconsin champion, who took second place at the Janesville registered tournament, last Thursday, won the national amateur title at double targets by breaking 91 out of a hundred. The weather was anything but favorable for trap shooting, a gale of wind causing the target to "kick" over the lake in carry ways. The preliminary handicap to the Grand American championship shoot will be held today and 581 trap men will compete. At least four men will engage in today's shooting. The events will be for a hundred birds from a 16 to a 23 yard rise. Professionals will have special events.

TEN CENT BASEBALL MAY AID THE GAME

Bargain Prices May Stave Off Bad Financial Effects of the Game.

Can Compete With "Movies."

The experiment of the Federal League in providing 10 cent baseball will be watched more closely than anything pulled in the national game in a long time.

It is hard to tell at this time what the effect will be on baseball in general, but the scheme may spread from the Federal League to at least the minor leagues of Organized Baseball and prove a life saver for teams that otherwise would have to toss up the sponge.

The first 10-cent game played at Newark, N. J., attracted 18,000 persons. Of course, the receipts were smaller than if the same number of persons attended under the old prices, but the same number of persons were not going to games when the higher prices were in order.

Those opposing it say it will cheapen the sport in the eyes of the public and receipts, bring about smaller prices for ballplayers and a slower article of ball.

Those in favor of lower prices say the scheme opens a way for baseball to compete with the movies, which have made big inroads on the outdoor article of ball.

CUBS MAKE PROTEST ON PITTSBURGH GAME

Clarke Pitches Benton Against Tener's Orders.—Rain Stops Sox at St. Louis.

New York, Aug. 18.—The Cubs open a three day engagement with Brooklyn at New York today, and Manager Bresnahan lodged a protest against the result of a game yesterday with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cubs split even in a double header with the Pirates, losing the first game 3 to 2 and copping the second by a rally by the count of 6 to 4. The protest is over the fact that Manager Clarke pitched Rube Benton, and it is claimed by the Chicago men that Benton had no business playing in Pittsburgh. McGraw, it appears, has an option on Monday on Benton, and the playing of Benton was against Tener's orders.

The Bruins lost the first game through the lameness of Asler. The Cubs were one run behind in the ninth and Sailer singled. He jogged down to first and when the fielder missed the ball was only able to make second when he should have camped on third.

Humphries copped Benton and held the Pirates to five hits, but four of these were bunched in the fifth inning and two dummies scored the three runs.

In the second game Zabel and Cooper hooked up for a six run lead and the Cub batters whaled Cooper. In the sixth the Pirates came back at Zabel and obtained a three run lead. In the seventh and eighth the Cubs clinched the game by hard clotting.

Rain Benefits Sox. St. Louis, Aug. 18.—The tail end of the Galveston storm struck St. Louis yesterday and as a result the White Sox were kept idle, and today the Sox are in Chicago to open up a series with the Red Sox. On the result of these three games hangs the Sox's chances for the pennant. Schuk will catch, but his throwing hand is seriously injured. Mayer is also hurt and Daly is the only other catcher the Sox have.

GLEN OAK TOURNEY FOR GOLFERS OPENED AT CHICAGO TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Chicago, Ill., Aug. 18.—Professionals and amateurs lined up to tee-off at the Glen Oak Country club here today in the annual contest for the open championship of the Western Golf Association. Prizes totaling over $700 will be divided five ways among the winners. In the event an amateur should win, an appropriate medal will be given him, and the full amount of the cash named for such prize will be awarded to the professional next in order.

Members of all clubs holding membership in the association were entitled to enter and this brought out a goodly number of middle western stars of the links. Play will end tomorrow night.

Hughey Jennings admits the Boston Red Sox are the strongest team in the American league, but he will not concede that it will win the pennant. Jennings figures the Red Sox have an advantage in pitchers, but that his team is the stronger with the bat. "Give me one of Carrigan's pitchers and I will win the flag without much trouble. My team cannot only hit and field, but it has backbone and in this respect has something on most of its rivals," is the way Jennings sizes up the situation. "There is, of course, little or no chance for me to get another pitcher, but that is all that stands between the Tigers and the flag. It seems that it would have been a good proposition to realize this fact last season and put in the winter trying to get a pitcher. Then the Detroit problem might now be solved."

One answer to "What's the Matter With Baseball?" was given by the fact of Boston's New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn, recently, when more than 125,000 paid admission to the ball parks of these cities in two days.

Baseball will not be baseball until another member of the Delephant family makes his appearance.

Charley Hall, former game saver for the Red Sox, is breaking all hurling records in the A. A. The Red Sox let him go because they thought he was through. He is burning up the association circuit for St. Paul, having won fifteen consecutive games. He helped win his fifteenth game last week by poking out a single, double and homer against Louisville.

Arnold Hauser, who was a sensation at short for the St. Louis Cardinals two years ago, but has been out ever since on account of an injured knee, has bobbed up at short for the Chicago Federals. News of his recovery had spread like wildfire, and a half dozen teams in organized ball as well as every Fed club were trying to grab him when Joe Tinker signed him up.

Ruth, the Boston Red Sox pitcher, who is pushing Ty Cobb for first swatting honors in the American league, has a hefty batting rival on the same pitching staff. It's Dutch Leonard, who has suddenly loomed up in first place in the league's batting list with nine hits in 25 times up for a 360 average, while Ruth, with 20 hits in 54 times is hitting .370. Meanwhile Cobb has slumped from .395 to .382 in a week.

Head Coach "Bud" Jones of the Exeter football eleven will have another brother at Exeter this year, as Tom, the last and youngest of the family, will come on from Exeter, O., to follow in the footsteps of his brothers, "Bud" and Howard and Clarence. The youngest of the Joneses is said to be a small fellow, and his strongest line is baseball, yet he may make a try for the eleven this fall.

To insure himself against monetary loss should his scheduled fight with Mike Gibbons at New York on September 11 be called off, Packey McFarland has taken out $20,000 insurance that the fight will be staged.

Johnny Coulton has gone to Deer Lake, Ont., to get in condition for a battle to regain his lost title as bantamweight champion. In this fray he will occupy the unique position of not being the challenger for the title, as he is the challenged party with Kid Williams, who wrestled the title from him, as challenger.

Earl Bitting, holding forth in the Western North Carolina league, is likely to be fired because he's too much of a fence buster. It has been agreed throughout the league that unless the heavy hitter is declared ineligible and ousted from the organization the league would blow up.

GREEN COUNTY FARMERS PLACE IN STATE CONTEST

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Monroe, Aug. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Blumer of Washington township, have the second best farm in the state of Wisconsin. This announcement is made today in the awarding of prizes amounting to more than $700, given in the Wisconsin farm contest.

Second place in the contest was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Blumer, while fourth place fell to Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Haberman of Monroe township. Mr. and Mrs. John Waeli are also among the winners for the best farms in the state, the three placing Green county in the lead for the state as having the best farms.

GOVERNOR PHILIPP GIVES APPROVAL ON CONTRACT FOR GYMNASIUM AT WHITEWATER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Madison, Wis., Aug. 18.—Governor Philipp has approved the contract for the new gymnasium at the White-water Normal school for which provisions was made by the 1913 legislature. Officials of the Oshkosh normal school are awaiting his signature to the contract for building operations at that institution, for which the 1913 legislature set aside $100,000.

NOT APPRECIATED.

Governor Philipp, his conservative republican appointees and friends are not appreciated in Madison. Their efforts in abolishing the taxpayers of the state are not considered valuable as sets in the state's capital. Society circles and citizens are so wrapped up in their university, their own personal, narrow scope of living, that they fail to appreciate great, big, broad-minded men who see something beyond the today, and turn the cold shoulder of hospitality to the men who have dared to contradict the work of their "idols" at the top of University Hill and restrict their reckless expenditure of money which they neither earn nor know the value of.

Madison has been called the Athens of America. It has also been likened to Rome, built on the seven hills. Writers have delighted to refer to the Capitol Hill to the University Hill. Of late the University Hill has been more to the University Hill than the Capitol. The hill has waged the dog in Wisconsin for many years and because the dog objected at last the occupants of the university section resent it.

Governor Philipp and his friends and advisors are big men. They are not blinded by the smiles of fair ladies, by the judiciously arranged dinners and drives in comfortable autos with cozy tape de tete. They went to Madison to enact a certain program which called for a business administration of state affairs and a reduction of state taxes.

If in following out their instructions given them by their constituents in various districts of the state outside of the zone of influence of the university, they have happened to offend the delicate sensibilities of the university continent and their near worshippers, so much the worse for the university.

However, there are men in Madison big enough to thoroughly understand what was attempted and what was accomplished. Men who appreciate the true value and worth of the governor, his appointees and his friends, who are not blinded by the honorary collegiate degrees they could not obtain through the regular channels, nor political preferment at the expense of the taxpayer. Madison is to be congratulated on this class of citizens and is a subject of sympathy for the others.

The sooner the university divorces itself from politics and the sooner the citizens of Madison tear from the standards the false gods they worship because they reside on "University Hill," the better it will be for the city of the beautiful lakes. There is no desire on the part of the governor or his friends to work any injury to the university or any state institution. They would rather build up than tear down.

Sooner or later Madison will appreciate the governor, but at present they are peeved. The fairies to give them their inaugural ball when he took his office. He failed to give them their social legislative functions. He failed to reciprocate their efforts to entertain at teas and dinners, where dainty women and soft music played an important part. They did not appreciate he was a governor of the people, for the people and by the people, and they are annoyed. They will recover, however, when they learn the true attitude of the state as a whole as to his worth. They appreciate his true value as a man and recognize that in his life social functions play but a small part. He is a man's man, and one of the few state executives that stands fairly on his own feet to enact the will of the sovereign ruler of the state—the voters.

GEORGIA'S SHAME.

Georgia should bow its head in shame at the last disgraceful lynching in which a man, a white man, convicted, sentenced and imprisoned in one of its penitentiaries, was taken out of his bed by an armed band of desperadoes, carried a hundred miles in an automobile and hung to the limb of a tree to satisfy the fanatical spirit of revenge of an ignorant class of citizens.

There has been doubt as to whether Leo Frank really committed the crime for which he was convicted. Hundreds of thousands of citizens the nation over signed petitions for clemency and his death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. It was the decision of a just executive, but he, too, is now the subject of the wrath of the ignorant mob and almost an exile from his native state. There have been lynchings. There have been men hung through judicial process. Many have gone to their death innocent of the crimes charged to them, but it is safe to say that no crime against organized government as this last affront of an ignorant mob, has ever raised such a storm of protest.

It is to the shame of Georgia. The only way it can wipe it from its escutcheon is to punish the men who committed it. It is a demand of the civilized world to the entire state of Georgia. It must be headed off if the state expects to escape the ignominy that will be attached to its name as a commonwealth in consequence for the rash act of the unprincipled men who committed this outrage. Innocent or guilty, Leo Frank was paying the penalty for the crime charged to him. It was up to the state to protect his life as they would of any other citizen. They were derelict in the duty and there must be an accounting. No one should escape and the guilty should be punished.

WANTED—A POLITICIAN.

A democratic politician who can exert the same, or approximately the same, influence in congress as William Jennings Bryan can secure regular employment in the Department of State. No knowledge of or taste for foreign relations or international law required. Salary $7,500. A perfect snip for the right man. Apply, with references as to political influence, to W. Wilson, White House, Washington.

Extraordinary as it may seem, this advertisement exactly sets forth the desire of the president and the qualifications he demands before he fills the counselorship of the department of state, a place which was filled with distinction by John Bassett Moore and which was made vacant by the promotion of Mr. Lansing to the secretaryship of state. The great necessity of the administration, as the president sees it, is to strengthen itself with congress and to replace the political influence lost when Mr. Bryan retired from the cabinet. For that reason, Mr. Wilson is hunting such a man as is described above and because that far he has been unable to find him the counselorship has remained vacant. The president regards himself and Secretary Lansing abundantly able to care for the foreign affairs of the nation and it is his carefully-designed purpose to utilize the $7,500 salary attached to the position of counselor to procure the services of a shrewd politician, able to exert potent influence on the Bryan side of the senate, and willing to better his influence for the salary named. When such a politician can be found the counselorship will not remain vacant another day. If a man of sufficient influence can be found he will be awarded his full share of patronage and will be permitted to name a successor to John E. Osborne, assistant secretary of state, who was chosen by Mr. Bryan for the able purpose of maintaining intact Mr. Bryan's political organization. The purpose of the president to employ important offices to promote his strength with congress is in accord with a policy he has pursued in a number of instances, notably in the case of ex-Congressman John W. Davis, now solicitor general, and ex-Congressman A. J. Peters, now assistant secretary of the treasury.

The Rock county fair is in session this week at Evansville. It is the Evansville fair; it is the Rock county fair. When the county had no fair at all the Evansville business men took the proposition up and have kept it alive for years and they deserve the support of every citizen of the county who is interested in seeing his home community exploited.

Mexico really will need an under-lavender quicker than a thief if the present death keeps on. Meanwhile Taft has stated that when he retired from office he was considering recognizing Huerta. Wish to goodness he had and the "watchful-waiting" policy had not been inaugurated.

Apparently Carranza is not pleased with anything his Uncle Samuel proposes. Perhaps he does not remember how Santa Anna felt when the Texans took matters in their own hands a half century or so ago, and gave Mexico a most unmerciful trimming.

What this country needs is a genuine, guaranteed, non-shrinkable, water-proof scenery. Something all wool and a yard or so wide that can be sewed in strings over the crops, to prevent their being spoiled by an excess of moisture.

The average golfer should include a pair of rubber boots in his outfit for the present season. They are an important item in his paraphernalia for the great Scotch game.

Urging some presidential aspirants to run for the presidential nomination is like inviting a duck to swim in a nice, clean pool of water.

SNAP SHOTS.

Ordinarily, a young man refers to his father as "the old man." But if he desires to be particularly polite, he refers to him as "the old gent."

Most candidates for congress really are running for the postoffice in their home town.

A man is a basso when he talks to women. But he often is a tenor when he converses with men.

You can attract some attention by being a champion speller, but the fellows who have to look it up in the dictionary seems to have most of the good jobs corralled. It has been discovered that our system of education makes children wiser than their parents. True enough. But the children are no wiser than their parents were at their age.

THE DAILEY NOVELETTE.

It Doesn't Pay and Why?

"Hey," he cried,

"In accents clear,"

"Are they sold here?"

Oswald Gallipot strolled into Skink and Kootie's talking establishment. "Is this the place where the boys got those tight trousers?" he asked in his enchanting tenor. "This is the place," replied Mr. Skink. "They cost $18 a pair and we have them directly on your legs. To insure absolute perfection of fit."

Now quickly, Oswald had just received his month's salary, and he still had the entire $22. He handed Mr. Skink nineteen of it. Mr. Skink pressed a button and three tailors rushed from sliding panels in the wall and in half an hour had sewed a perfect pair of glove fitting trousers on Oswald.

"Now, I'm one of the boys!" he thought joyously and he loved time sporting them all afternoon. But at night he discovered that even with the help of a shoe horn, he could not possibly remove them. And, as going to bed in $19 trousers was out of the question, he stayed up all night, though he was a man who needed his eight hours. Rather than spoil his $19 pants by sleeping in them, he didn't go to bed for seven days, and on the eighth he died dead from lack of sleep and was buried in his tight trousers.

AUSTRALIA IN NEW EFFORT TO INCREASE RECRUITING FOR ARMY. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Melbourne, Australia, Aug. 17.—A message having been received from the Imperial authorities regarding the new law for many Australian soldiers as possible, the Commonwealth is endeavoring to respond to the call without delay.

A short time ago recruiting fell off seriously and the Minister for Defense was obliged to make a personal plea for more volunteers, but since then the recruiting has improved and, it is believed, the required number of reinforcements—about 5,000 monthly—will be obtained in the near future. The government is pledged to furnish the monthly quota of reinforcements to make good the wastage in the Australian ranks in Turkey before it undertakes the raising of fresh expeditionary forces.

Once the shortage in reinforcements has been met, the Defense Department will try to send an additional contingent.

NEW STATE BANKS FORMED IN WISCONSIN. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Madison, Wis., Aug. 18.—This week has witnessed the formation of several new state banks. Articles of incorporation were approved by Banking Commissioner A. R. Kuft for the Alouez State bank of Superior; capital, $10,000. The incorporators are J. O. Gily, Theo. S. Degen, George E. Nevers, J. S. Hixley and William Steele. Articles were also approved for the Neva Farmers' bank of Neva, Langlade county, with capital stock of $10,000. Incorporators are W. J. Matlek, John F. Schultz, Victor Stasek, Anton Gallenberg and W. J. Rime. A certificate of authority to commence business was issued to the Farmers and Merchants' bank of Racine; capital, $10,000. John Wickers, president; H. A. Dierler, cashier. Similar authority was granted to the State Bank of Glen Flora, Rusk county, with capital of $10,000. J. L. Hughes is the president and E. C. Hunt, cashier. The State Bank of Durand increased its capital from $25,000 to $35,000.

MEXICAN JOE RIVERS BEATS STANLEY YOAKUM. TWO TYPES OF GUNS NEEDED IN TRENCH

Short and Long Range Weapons Needed by French for Trench Warfare.—New Guns Used.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Dunkirk, Aug. 17.—The trench warfare in France has made two distinct and apparently contradictory demands upon manufacturers of armaments—one for weapons of extraordinary range, and the other for guns which will drop a shell at a shorter range than ever before used.

The German gunmakers, who are developing long-range guns capable of carrying a projectile from Calais to Dover, are at the same time showing remarkable ingenuity in making quaint little mortars which will drop missiles containing high explosive about as far as a fair football player can kick goal.

The "minnewerfer" was the first of the short range weapons to meet the British troops in France, and it was regarded as a very excellent weapon of its class. But the newer German inventions of similar character are a hundred times more effective in deadliness and power.

The so-called "Rum-jar" is perhaps the most feared of the new German trench mortars. It is named by the British soldiers from the resemblance of its missile to the gallon stone jars in which the army rations of rum are carried. The projectile is slightly more than twice the size of the army rum-jar, however. It is generally first sighted when approaching the top of its flight, in descent, it is constructed of a thin steel case filled with trinitro-toluol. The damage it causes is due entirely to its detonating quality—it does not rely on metal or bullets for its effect. The explosion seems to come in a flash, rather than that of any other projectile, and there is therefore a concentrated fury to the noise of its bursting that distinguishes it from all other projectiles.

The "Sausage" is another variety of missile fired probably from compressed air-guns, inasmuch as the discharge makes a little noise as to be practically inaudible.

The "Percy" is a five-inch shell which explodes in the air with an extraordinary crack, while the less destructive "Pip-squeakers" are missiles of similar kind but much smaller size. The so-called "Whizz-bang" is a bomb exploded by means of a time fuse, but thrown by hand.

"MOVIES" ON BRITISH SIDE OF THE CONFLICT UNDER WAR OFFICE. [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Aug. 17.—Under the authority of the War Office, arrangements have just been completed for taking a complete moving-picture record of events of the war in the British lines, both at the front and along the lines of communication.

The leading film producers and exhibitors in London have been brought into a co-operative scheme, so that no single firm shall have a monopoly of the pictures. The first photographs will be taken in about a fortnight.

One complete set of the pictures will be retained by the War Office for historical records and instruction. This set will eventually be placed in the British Museum. The Board of Education is expected to co-operate in a scheme for the use of the films in the public schools.

ALL JAILS AND PRISONS IN ENGLAND TURNED INTO MUNITION FACTORIES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

London, Aug. 18.—All the jails and prisons in Great Britain have been turned into manufacturing plants of war material since the outbreak of hostilities. The ordinary prison work has been suspended, wherever possible, and both male and female prisoners have been given employment on war work. Their interest in the work has been so great, according to a statement from the Home Office, that the output has been more than double that of peace times.

The government declines information as to the exact character of the work being performed, but it is stated that "several millions of useful articles have been made for the front." Special instruction in the new trades has been given by the prison attendants, who in several cases have been detached to receive a course of training for this purpose.

Inmates of boys' reformatories and similar institutions have been allowed to join the army in most cases, the preliminary military instruction having been given on the ground of the institutions. Several hundred reformatory boys have already figured in the casualty lists from the front, and a considerable number of young men from these institutions have received mention in dispatches for acts of bravery.

FREE RIGHTS LAWS ARE REPEALED IN THE PART OF KILL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Amsterdam, Aug. 18.—According to the Vossische Zeitung, an "increased state of siege" has been proclaimed in the entire district of the war port of Kiel. Articles 57, 28, and 29 of the Constitution have been suspended, thus repealing the right of expression of opinion by speech or writing, the right of assembly in closed rooms, the inviolability of private houses, and personal freedom.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH CAMERON

SOMEDAY.

"Mas is always dreamy to look at; they speak a romance of the sea; of unknown lands, of distant forests aglow with tropical colors and abounding with strange forms of life. In the hearts of most of us there is always a desire for something beyond experience. Hardly any of us but have thought, some day I shall go on a long voyage; but the years go by and still we have not sailed."

"What is that station?" I asked the motorist as we swung past a rather pretty little railroad station, on our way from his summer home to the city.

"I think it is Black Rock," he answered. And then, with a touch of whimsy in his tone, "Someday I shall certainly stop and find out."

The words were few and colorless, but the tone in which they were spoken suggested much. The motorist makes that run two or three times a week, which means that he cannot read it from the road, and so he idly wonders about it, guesses what it may be and promises himself that someday he will stop and find out. That would be an ultra simple thing to do, and yet the days and the weeks and the summers pass and someday does not come.

The Little Promises We Make Ourselves.

How many of these little promises we all make ourselves? Someday we will speak to that interesting looking person who has sat in the seat beside us on the train so many times. Someday we are going to get out of our hackneyed vacation habits and spend our vacation in some really novel way.

Someday we are going to write a letter to the author whose books have meant so much to us.

Things We Don't Have Time For in Today's Routine.

Someday we are going to do all the little different things that we don't have time for in the routine of today.

And the to-days and the to-morrows and the weeks and the months and the summers and the winters and the milestones go by and someday has not come.

"Is heaven a place where someday really come?" questioned a wistful little person who had been promised so many wonderful things should he grant her "someday."

A wonder, top.

Question—I have been a divorcee for several years. My husband and I parted for purely temperamental reasons. Although I still cherish him for the highest respect and admiration, our social relations have been somewhat strained since the divorce. I am about to be married again and want to know if under the circumstances it would be proper to send my former husband an invitation to my wedding, and if you think he would receive it in the cordial spirit in which it would be sent.

Answer—It seems to me that your former husband's presence at your wedding would be likely to give constraint rather than pleasure to all parties concerned. Why not merely send him an announcement?

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"This is Casey. Doesn't it look exciting?" asked Dick, as he helped his mother off the train. Near the track the huge oil derrick and the skeleton tower for the oil drill reared itself against the sky. A smell of new pine filled the air.

Early as it was, a crowd of loungers formed a circle around the drill and one fellow was discoursing in a loud voice on the indications of striking oil. As Dick and his mother approached, the man next to the vein. In the last three weeks they were over by the creek they could smell the oil in the fragments brought up by the drill. Oil will run in today," he announced vociferously.

Mrs. Morton elbowed her way through the crowd, and going up to the man who was operating the drill began putting practical questions to him as to the cost of boring per foot, the average depth of the vein in that region, length of time they had been at work, number of paying wells in the vicinity, etc.

"You are interested in oil wells?" asked the man when she had finished the catechism.

"I should be; my people have enough money sunk in them," she replied laconically.

At this point the drill brought up some fragments of rock and all crowded around to see if they showed signs of oil. They were passed from one to another in the group, and the old lady sniffed at the sample disdainfully.

"I think that smells a little of oil," opined Dick hopefully.

"Let us see what the other wells look like," she suggested, turning away.

When the train for Kansas City pulled up at the platform she was in possession of all the data obtainable; knew the time each well had been running, the average output in barrels, and so on. Dick had only been able to follow her around and slip in an occasional question in the stream she poured on everyone who could give her any information.

She sat bolt upright in grim silence during the rest of the journey and marched into the office of the oil company like an avenger. Her questions soon probed below the suave manner of the manager and pricked his vanity.

"If your company is not paying expenses, how does it come that you have so much money in mahogany desks and electric fans?" She looked disapprovingly over her spectacles at the elegantly appointed office.

"Really, madam, were you sent to investigate the management by the stockholders?" The manager gave her a frosty stare.

"By two of them, yes," she answered tartly, "and it's my opinion it would pay the rest of them to investigate. I would like to have you explain to me what became of the balance of the first assessment; not much over half has gone into the sinking of new wells, according to my figures."

"If I spent my time explaining the conduct of my business to every meddling woman who chose to come here I should be unable to do anything else."

"Exactly!" exclaimed his visitor, pinning him with a sharp look.

"Sims, show the lady to the waiting room," he called to the office boy, and swung his desk chair around and fell to work with the appearance of a man driven by affairs.

"Where are you going?" asked Dick, following, as she stalked in wrath to the street.

To a lawyer. There must be a meeting of the stockholders called, and an investigation of this gas bag of a manager," she announced.

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

New Way to Can Peaches—Take perfect peaches; wash them, do not remove the skins (on a good peach the skin is very thin); put peaches in pails for baking, put required amount of sugar and water on them (treat the same as baked apples); fill oven with the pans. Bake, and when tender pack into hot glass jars and seal.

Stuffed Peaches—Select medium-sized peaches; wash and take out stones; cover with salt water and let stand over night. In the morning fill centers with grated horseradish and a nutmeg with a little celery seed and a small piece of ginger. Remove the peach with string and pack in jars. Turn over them bottled vinegar, with sugar and spices to taste. Seal jars, and at Thanksgiving time you will have delicious peaches to eat with the turkey.

HOMEMADE VINEGARS.

Make your vinegar at home; very little trouble, costs nothing. Half-gallon fruit jars are better than stone lugs to make it in, as a larger surface is exposed to the light and air; by shaking often, souring is hastened. When mother forms, now vinegar can be made by simply adding sweetened water. Boil the water first.

Tomato Vinegar—Mash one quart ripe tomatoes to a pulp. Strain juice and put in a jar with one teaspoon sugar or molasses. Fill jar with boiled water and set in sun for two weeks.

Celery Vinegar—An excellent flavor for soups, gravies, etc. Put four ounces in a quart bottle and fill up vinegar. It is ready for use in a few days.

Corn Vinegar—Put one teaspoon shelled corn and one teaspoon brown sugar, or molasses, in a jar. Fill up with water and set in the sun. This takes three weeks to make, but is one of the very best vinegars.

THE TABLE.

Tomato and Lima Beans—Parboil fresh lima beans in salted water till tender, drain and reserve. Liquid. Place alternate layers of beans and peeled sliced tomato; season. Make a cream sauce of the liquid and pour over; sprinkle with bread crumbs, and dots of butter. Bake one-half hour.

Broiled Cauliflower—Boil cauliflower as usual. Arrange on a platter in rows. Butter liberally half a cup of bread crumbs, spread over the vegetable and place under the flame in a gas oven till browned.

Mrs. Duval West.

Mrs. Duval West is the wife of President Wilson's friend and adviser in Mexican matters and was a recent visitor to Washington, where she was entertained by the Postmaster General and Mrs. Burleson. She is now at her home in San Antonio, Texas.

Summer Salad—Mix together two cups chopped pineapple, one cup chopped apple and one-half cup English walnut meats. Pour over this any desired salad dressing that is not too sour and serve on crisp lettuce leaves with a spoonful of whipped cream on top. This is also very delicious if the salad dressing is thin and with a little of the pineapple juice.

Garden Salad—One cucumber, one medium-sized onion, small bunch celery, one large cooked beet, one sweet pepper, three or four radishes, one large sweet pickle, one-half cup cooked corn, one-half cup cooked peas, two slices fried bacon, small sprig mint. Chop all together, mix with mayonnaise dressing. File on sliced tomato on lettuce leaf.

Salad—Take two medium-sized cucumbers, remove seeds, four or five young onions, use outside of one large pepper (green), but no seeds; put all in chopping bowl. Chop not too finely, season with salt, a little white pepper and vinegar. Serve with fish or cold meat.

Stuffed Tomato Salad—Remove skins, chill, remove inside of tomato and season with salt and pepper. Combine equal parts of dried cucumber and celery, with half as much minced onion and nuts chopped. Season, mix with mayonnaise dressing, heap with whipped cream on top and garnish with parsley.

Dessert From Left-Over Fruit—Berry season is here, and this is a simple but delicious way to use any left-overs: Into the upper pan of your double-boiler put a pint of sweet milk; when it comes to a boil stir in two tablespoons of cornstarch which has been dissolved in a little water. Let boil five minutes. Add one egg well beaten with half a cup of sugar and a pinch of salt; let boil two minutes, stirring constantly. Flavor with vanilla and stir in a cup of crushed fruit, such as raspberries, blackberries, peaches, etc., or even stewed apples may be used. Remove from fire and beat well for a minute. Two, four into mold, chill and serve with sugar and cream.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am eighteen years old. I am to be bridesmaid at my sister's wedding. She has asked me to wear a pink dress. As I am to wear white slippers with black trimmings, shall I have black ribbons on my dress?

(2) Would a voile dress be suitable?

(3) How should I dress my hair?

(4) Could I use a black velvet band around my hair and neck?

(5) I am five feet eight inches tall. How long should I wear my dresses?

(6) What are the duties of a bridesmaid? Where does she stand during the ceremony?

(7) What would be appropriate to serve at a five-course supper? A dinner?

(8) How is sulphur used to purify the blood? GRATEFUL JAC.

(1) Black ribbons in pink dress would make it too striking. Have it made dainty and simple so that it will not draw attention from what the bride wears. You might have the dress made so that black could be added after the wedding, for black and pink are very pretty together.

(2) Yes.

(3) Dress your hair in the way you always do. It will look better than some new way.

(4) Wear a black band around your hair or neck, if it is becoming, but not both.

(5) From four to six inches from the floor. You can tell better than I what would be graceful.

(6) What a bridesmaid has to do depends upon the size of the wedding and the wishes of the bride. At a church wedding the maid or matron of honor enters walking alone. If there are both they walk together.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is "Dear" or "My dear" the more formal way of addressing a letter?

"My dear." INQUISITIVE.

NEW YORK GIRLS WILL LOSE THEIR SHIP BOARDING HOME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York, Aug. 18.—The old ship, Jacob A. Stanley, was due to be abandoned today by the fifty working girls who have made it their home for some years. The vessel, moored in the East river near the foot of Twenty-third street, is needed for other purposes by the Arbuckle estate, which owns it.

The girls have a sentimental attachment to the ship where they have lived long and been happy, and the prospect of moving also means a serious financial problem. On the Jacob Stanley charges for board have ranged from $2.50 to $3.00, and the girls say they can't get accommodations elsewhere for that amount. Some of them earn only $4 a week, and none more than $7 or $8. Some are out of work.

Fifty-nine years ago the sailing ship, Jacob A. Stanley, was one of the largest passenger vessels plying between New York and Havre, France. Later, she took cargoes to and from nearly every large port in the world. John Arbuckle, the coffee king, purchased her in 1901, and turned her into a traveling hotel, making nightly trips from the Battery to Sandy Hook. In recent years she has been moored at East Twenty-third street and maintained, with the yacht Glana as a floating dormitory for men, at the expense of the Arbuckle heirs. Frank D. Sheeley has been shipper, mate, pilot and foster-parent for the "crew" of the ship.

Crisco Doughnuts, Wholesome and Delicious

Doughnuts made with and fried in Crisco are rich, light and dry inside and crisp and tasty outside. The crust forms instantly, baking the inside. This is because Crisco can be heated to such a high temperature without smoking.

So let the youngsters, with wholesome Crisco doughnuts, Crisco cookies, gingerbread, etc., satisfy their perfectly natural hunger for sweets, a craving that should be appeased.

Crisco is all vegetable, a pure, rich fat that makes all foods not only more digestible but more delicious as well.

"Who commanded them? Did you learn?"

"A gray-headed, seamed-faced mountaineer, they called Cowan."

She emitted a quick breath, between closely pressed lips.

"You know the man?" I asked.

"Yes, old Ned Cowan; he lived over yonder, east of here in the foothills. He and—my father had some trouble before the war. He—he is vindictive and dangerous."

She stopped, her glance sweeping about the room.

"I—I have some reason to suspect," she added, as if half doubting whether she ought to speak the word, "that either he, or one of his men, broke in here."

"In search of something?"

"A paper; yes—a deed. Of course I may be mistaken; only it is not to be found. The desk in the library was rifled, and its contents scattered over the floor when I came. I put them back in place, but found nothing of value among those that remained. My father must have removed those of importance."

"Possibly he carried them with him?"

She leaned her head on her hand, her eyes thoughtful.

"I think he once told me they were left in charge of a banker at Charleston—an old friend. It would be too dangerous to carry them about with him in the field. You see I do not know very much about his affairs," she explained. "I was away at school when the war broke out, and we have only met briefly since. My father did not talk freely of his personal matters even to me. I learned of his feud with Cowan by accident."

"It was a feud then?"

"On one side at least. My father was shot at, and several of our houses burned. The trouble arose over the title to property. Cowan," she explained, "was a squatter on land which had belonged to our family ever since my grandfather first settled here. We had title from Virginia, but the tract granted had never been properly surveyed. My father had it done, and discovered that Ned Cowan and two of his sons occupied a part of our land with no legal right."

Her eyes uplifted to my face, and then fell again, one hand opening and closing on the back of the chair. She laughed pleasantly.

"I hardly know why I am telling you all this family history," she continued almost in apology. "It is as if I talked to an old friend who was naturally interested in our affairs."

"Perhaps the manner of our meeting accounts for it," I ventured. "But truly I am more deeply interested than you imagine. I may prove of mutual advantage for me to know the facts. Did Major Harwood try to force them from his land?"

"Oh, no," hastily. "My father had no such thought. He tried to help them to purchase the property at a very small price, and on long time. His intention was to aid them, but he found himself unable to convince either father or sons of his real purpose. They either could not, or would not, understand. Do you realize the reckless, lawless nature of these mountain men?"

"Yes, to some extent; they trust no one."

"That was the whole trouble. Seemingly they possessed but one idea—that if my father was killed they could remain where they were indefinitely. Their single instinct was to fight it out with rifles. They refused to either purchase or leave."

There was silence, as though she had finished. She had seated herself on the wide arm of the chair, still facing me, and I could hear the rain beating hard against the side of the house. Suddenly she looked up into my face.

"How odd that I should talk to you so freely," she exclaimed. "Why I do not even know your name."

"Charles H. Raymond."

I could not be certain that the expression of her eyes changed, for they suddenly looked away from me, and she stood again upon her feet.

"Raymond, you say!" the slightest hardening of tone apparent, "on recruiting service from the Army of the Potomac?" She drew a quick breath. "I—I think I have heard the name before. Would you mind if I did ask to see your orders?"

"Not in the least," I answered, not wholly surprised that she should have heard of the other, and confident the papers I bore would be properly executed. "I prefer that you have no doubt as to my identity."

She took them, and I noted a slight trembling of her hands as she held the paper open in her fingers, her eyes glancing swiftly down the written lines.

"I have become quite a soldier of late," she said, and handed the package back to me. "And I cannot doubt your credentials. I am very glad to meet you, Lieutenant Raymond," and she held out her hand cordially. "As I have admitted already, I am Norreen Harwood."

"Whom I shall only be delighted to serve in any manner possible," I replied gallantly, relieved that she was so easily convinced.

"Oh, I think the service is more likely to be mine. You confessed you

"Indeed!" I caught my breath quickly, yet held my eyes firm. "Someone living about here?"

"Yes, his name was Wyatt. I never knew him very well, only you recalled him to memory in some way. He and his mother went South when the war first broke out. Where was your home?"

"In Burlington, Vermont."

"You are a regular soldier?"

"I was a junior at West Point last year; we were graduated ahead of our class."

Her eyes fell, the lashes outlined on her cheeks, her hands clasped on the table.

"Isn't that odd?" she said quietly. "Do you know Mrs. Hackett's school for young ladies at Compton on the Hudson? That is where papa sent me, and I was at the senior hop at West Point a year ago last June. A half dozen of us girls went up; Fred Carlton of Charleston was in that class, and he invited me. You knew him, of course?"

My lips were dry, but I nodded, half fearful I might be slipping into some trap, although her words and manner were surely innocent enough.

"We were acquaintances, not friends," I replied, hoping the retort might cause her to change the subject. "Most of the boys seemed to like him. He was very pleasant to me, and I had a splendid time. I met one cadet named Raymond; he had dark hair and eyes."

"Oh, yes," I managed to answer, now desperately alert. "There was another in the class—James R. I believe."

"I did not learn his first name, but when I heard that a Lieutenant Raymond was coming here, I hoped it might be he. That was why I was so deeply interested. It is not such a common name, you know."

I made some answer, and she sat there silently, her face turned now toward the fire in the grate. The profile held me in fascination, as I wondered what these seemingly innocent questions could signify. Anyhow, let the truth be what it may, there was no other course left for me, but to keep on with the deception. I was in the heart of the enemy's country, in disguise, my life forfeit in case of discovery, and the time had not come when I could entrust her with so dangerous a secret.

The wind rattled the blinds, and the rain beat heavily against the side of the house. The thought of venturing out into the storm, not knowing where I could seek shelter, was not an alluring one. Nor had I any excuse to urge for immediate departure; indeed as a gentleman and soldier my duty called me to remain for her protection. She could not be left alone in this desolate house. It was my steady gaze that roused the lady from whatever dream the flames of the grate had given her. She turned her head to meet my eyes—then sat suddenly erect, the expression of her face instantly changing, as she stared beyond me at the open door. I wheeled about to look, startled at the movement. A man stood in the doorway, water streaming from his clothes on to the floor. I was on my feet instantly, a hand gripping my revolver, but before I could whip it from the leather sheave, the girl had taken the single step forward, and grasped my sleeve.

The fellow lifted one arm, and stepped forward full into the light. He was a man of years, unarmed, a tall, ungainly figure, a scraggly beard at his chin, and a face like parchment. His eyes were two deep wells, solemn and unwhinking.

"Peace to you both!" he said gravely. "I ask naught save fire and shelter."

"To these you are welcome," the girl answered, still clinging to my arm. "You travel alone?"

"Even as my master in ragged and poverty, having no place wherein to lay my head. The foxes have holes, the birds of the air have nests—you know me, young woman?"

"Yes; you are Parson Nichols."

"An unworthy soldier of the cross. I address the daughter of Major Harwood—and this young man?"

"Lieutenant Raymond of the Federal army," she explained simply. "He sought refuge here from the storm."

The man's eyes searched my face, but without cordiality, without expression of any kind. Saying nothing he crossed to the fireplace, and held out his hands to the warmth of the blaze. The girl's eyes met mine almost questioningly. Then she stepped forward.

"We were just completing our meal," she said softly. "There is not much, but we will gladly share what we have."

"The flesh needeth nothing," he answered, not even looking around, "and the spirit liveth on the bread of life. I seek only converse with you. The

That is where papa sent me, and I was at the senior hop at West Point a year ago last June. A half dozen of us girls went up; Fred Carlton of Charleston was in that class, and he invited me. You knew him, of course?"

My lips were dry, but I nodded, half fearful I might be slipping into some trap, although her words and manner were surely innocent enough.

"We were acquaintances, not friends," I replied, hoping the retort might cause her to change the subject. "Most of the boys seemed to like him. He was very pleasant to me, and I had a splendid time. I met one cadet named Raymond; he had dark hair and eyes."

"Oh, yes," I managed to answer, now desperately alert. "There was another in the class—James R. I believe."

"I did not learn his first name, but when I heard that a Lieutenant Raymond was coming here, I hoped it might be he. That was why I was so deeply interested. It is not such a common name, you know."

I made some answer, and she sat there silently, her face turned now toward the fire in the grate. The profile held me in fascination, as I wondered what these seemingly innocent questions could signify. Anyhow, let the truth be what it may, there was no other course left for me, but to keep on with the deception. I was in the heart of the enemy's country, in disguise, my life forfeit in case of discovery, and the time had not come when I could entrust her with so dangerous a secret.

The wind rattled the blinds, and the rain beat heavily against the side of the house. The thought of venturing out into the storm, not knowing where I could seek shelter, was not an alluring one. Nor had I any excuse to urge for immediate departure; indeed as a gentleman and soldier my duty called me to remain for her protection. She could not be left alone in this desolate house. It was my steady gaze that roused the lady from whatever dream the flames of the grate had given her. She turned her head to meet my eyes—then sat suddenly erect, the expression of her face instantly changing, as she stared beyond me at the open door. I wheeled about to look, startled at the movement. A man stood in the doorway, water streaming from his clothes on to the floor. I was on my feet instantly, a hand gripping my revolver, but before I could whip it from the leather sheave, the girl had taken the single step forward, and grasped my sleeve.

The fellow lifted one arm, and stepped forward full into the light. He was a man of years, unarmed, a tall, ungainly figure, a scraggly beard at his chin, and a face like parchment. His eyes were two deep wells, solemn and unwhinking.

"Peace to you both!" he said gravely. "I ask naught save fire and shelter."

"To these you are welcome," the girl answered, still clinging to my arm. "You travel alone?"

"Even as my master in ragged and poverty, having no place wherein to lay my head. The foxes have holes, the birds of the air have nests—you know me, young woman?"

"Yes; you are Parson Nichols."

"An unworthy soldier of the cross. I address the daughter of Major Harwood—and this young man?"

"Lieutenant Raymond of the Federal army," she explained simply. "He sought refuge here from the storm."

The man's eyes searched my face, but without cordiality, without expression of any kind. Saying nothing he crossed to the fireplace, and held out his hands to the warmth of the blaze. The girl's eyes met mine almost questioningly. Then she stepped forward.

"We were just completing our meal," she said softly. "There is not much, but we will gladly share what we have."

"The flesh needeth nothing," he answered, not even looking around, "and the spirit liveth on the bread of life. I seek only converse with you. The young man is an officer?"

"Yes—on recruiting service."

"You know him well? You trust him?"

"I—I have not known him long," she replied hesitatingly, and glancing back at me. "Yet I have confidence in him."

The man did not answer, or move and, after a moment of silence, she asked:

"Have you ridden far?"

"From Lewisburg."

"Lewisburg!" in surprise. "Then you knew I was here? You came seeking me?"

He turned on his stool, his eyes searching her face gravely.

"On a mission of ministry," he replied solemnly, "although whether it prove of joy, or sorrow, I am unable to say. I am but an instrument."

The man's reluctance to speak freely was apparent, and I stepped forward.

"If you prefer conversing with Miss Harwood alone," I said quietly, "I will retire."

"The words I would speak are indeed of a confidential nature."

"No, no!" she broke in impulsively, her eyes of appeal turned toward me. "Do not leave us, lieutenant. This man has nothing to say I am afraid to have you hear. He has not come here as a friend; there is some evil purpose in all this, which I cannot fathom."

She faced him now, her slender body poised, her eyes on his. "Tell me what it is—this mysterious mission? Ay! and who sent you to find me? I will not believe it was my father."

The minister rose to his feet, a tall, ungainly figure, his solemn face as expressionless as before, but a smoldering resentment was in his deep-set eyes. He possessed the look of a fanatic, one who would hesitate at nothing to gain his end. To me he was even repulsive in his narrow bigotry.

"No, it was not your father," he said almost coarsely, "but it is a part of my mission to bring to you, young woman, the news of your father's death."

"Death? My father dead?" she stepped back from him, her hands pressed against her eyes. Obeying the first instinct of protection, I stepped to support her as she seemed about to fall. "That cannot be! You lie! I know you lie! You never lie!"

"You come here to tell me that to frighten me; to compel me to do something wrong."

The man exhibited no trace of emotion, no evidence of regret, his voice the same hard, metallic sound.

"I expected this outburst," he continued unmoved. "Indeed, it is no more than natural. But I harbor no resentment, and in this hour freely forgive all. 'He that taketh the sword, shall perish by the sword,' and my words are true."

"But I saw him four days ago."

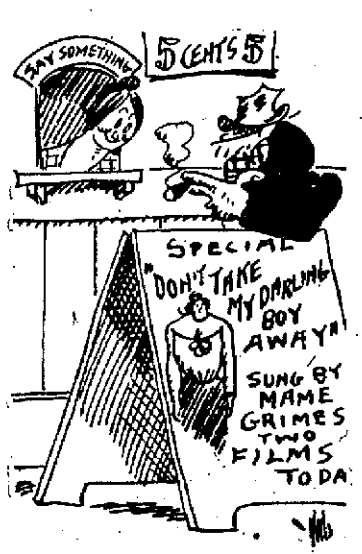

"On his way east to Hot Springs, with an escort of soldiers. It was there he was killed, together with his servant. A messenger brought the news."

"A soldier? One of Captain Fox's men?"

A sardonic smile flickered an instant on the preacher's thin lips.

Dinner Stories

Senator Borah was talking at a dinner in Boise about an embarrassing question that had been asked at Chicago.

"The question," he said, smiling, "went unanswered. It was like little Willie's query: A young gentleman was spending the week-end at Little Willie's cottage at Atlantic City, and on Sunday evening after dinner, there being a scarcity of chairs on the crowded piazza, the young gentleman took Willie on his lap. Then, during a pause in the conversation, Little Willie looked up at the young gentleman and piped: 'Am I as heavy as sifter Mabel?'

The chief of police of Cincinnati tells this one:

"A German shoemaker left the gas turned on in his shop one night, and upon arriving in the morning struck a match to light it. There was a terrific explosion and the shoemaker was blown out through the door, almost to the middle of the street."

"A policeman rushed to his assistance, and after helping him to arise, inquired if he was injured. The Teuton gazed into his place of business, which was now burning quite briskly, and said:

"I ain't hurt. But I got out shust in time, eh?"

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

GOOD ADVICE FOR THIN PEOPLE.

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to gain a few pounds and stay that way," declare many thin men and women. Such a result is usually not impossible despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood much of the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the flesh making food elements must be so prepared in the digestive processes that the blood will accept and distribute them throughout the body. There is a preparation called Sargol, which works on this basis and which is sold by nearly every druggist on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back. Hundreds have testified to weight increase from its use.

Sargol does not of itself make fat but is simply a combination of ingredients of acknowledged merit that, taken with meals seems to better enable the digestive organs to separate the fattening elements of the food and to prepare them in a form which the blood can readily absorb. Sargol comes in tablet form, is pleasant and easy to take and its action is perfectly natural and harmless. Sargol is sold by all druggists everywhere who are authorized to refund the full purchase price if weight increase is not obtained.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while it has produced excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders care should be taken by those using it who do not want to increase weight.

"I went out with the bookkeeper last night," said the shipping clerk. "We took in a musical comedy."

"Did he enjoy it?" asked the cashier.

"I don't know. Judging from the expression on his face I think the darned fool was trying to add up the figures in the chorus."

Where Railroad Ties Come From.

The place from which more railroad ties are shipped than from any other in the United States is Reeds Springs, Mo., in the Ozarks. The hewers are paid from 12 to 16 cents a tie, according to the hardness of the wood.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective

Sufferers from Tuberculosis often think that medicine will not help them. Fresh air, regular habits and good food aid in restoring health, but more is often needed. Many have been restored to health by Eckman's Alternative. Read this—

"Gentlemen—through your instrumentality, I have been saved from a premature grave. On December 14, 1904, I was taken with Typhoid pneumonia, which developed into Tuberculosis (bacilli were found). In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Canon City, Colorado. After being there two weeks my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 103 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of reaching there alive. On July 14, 1905, I began taking Eckman's Alternative for Lung Trouble. Now I am stout and well and can do any kind of work about my grain elevator." (Abbreviated.)

(A. H. WERNER, WERNER, Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and up-building the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size $1; regular size $2. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.)

Two Big Factors for Wisconsin

Nature and the Wisconsin Daily League have arranged themselves to make business for the advertiser who will investigate conditions.

Wisconsin produces 90% of the peas canned in the United States.

Wisconsin is the leading dairy state in the Union.

Wisconsin has so many diversities in its income as to make it a never failing working ground for business.

The Wisconsin Daily League enters 125,000 of the best Wisconsin homes every day.

Twenty-six of the best papers at the best selling points in the state are read by over 600,000 of the population of the state.

Every publisher of every paper has been trained to co-operation. One order and one check distributed from the central office of the secretary clips off all unnecessary trouble for the advertiser.

Big advertisers are coming into the Wisconsin Daily League;

Are coming into Wisconsin because of the Wisconsin Daily League.

MUCH CO-OPERATION TO INDUCE FARMER TO EXCELL IN WORK

Wisconsin Firms Enter Into Farm Management Contest and Give Big Cash Prizes.

That Wisconsin appreciates her successful farmers was demonstrated at Fort Atkinson the past two days, when prizes amounting to more than $700 were given to winners in the Wisconsin farm management contest.

The Board's Dairyman prizes, which are offered for the best farmers in the state have been increased, since last year, from $300 to $500, according to D. H. Ous, of the College of Agriculture who has charge of the farm contest and demonstration work. This increase was made with the understanding that considerable emphasis be placed upon the home life or the part played by the farmer's wife.

This year the Wisconsin Agriculturalist awarded more than $200 to the winners in the counties represented in the contest.

As it has been found unwise to separate the farm home from the farm, and award separate prizes, the prize is, therefore, awarded to the farmer and his wife.

The list of the state winners for the past year are as follows:

First prize, D. L. Williams and daughter, Waushara county, $500; second, E. C. Blumer and wife, Green county, $450; third, W. J. Gillette and wife, and Son and wife, Fond du Lac county, $400; fourth, H. V. Haberman and wife, Crawford county, $350; fifth, A. G. Garke and wife, Jefferson county, $300; sixth, James Baird and wife, and W. Baird, Waushara county, $250; the four $200 (each) prizes were won by: M. L. Welles and wife, Fond du Lac county; G. F. Comings and wife, Eau Claire county; L. P. Martiny and wife, Chippewa county; and W. F. Miller and wife, La Crosse county; the seven $100 (each) prizes were awarded to: E. L. Bonodiet and wife, Rock county; Charles Lathers and wife, Rock county; John Waelte and wife, Green county; Hake Bros. and wife, Jefferson county; S. L. Mann and wife, Waushara county; and Henry Andrus and wife, Jefferson county; the nine $10 (each) prizes went to: Jake Schmidt and wife, Wood county; P. C. Kruse and wife, Sauk county; A. W. Hargrave and R. O. Hargrave and wife, Fond du Lac county; Jesse Crump and wife, Jefferson county; W. J. Ward and wife and sons, Rock county; T. Wright and wife, Fond du Lac county; H. A. Longley and wife, Waushara county; Earl Thomas and wife, Sauk county; and S. L. Dudley and wife, La Crosse county.

The Wisconsin Agriculturalist prizes of $10 to each county winner were distributed to farmers in 21 counties as follows:

Barron county, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clark; Douglas county, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lavett; Dunn county, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kolind; Eau Claire county, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Comings; Fond du Lac county, W. J. Gillette and wife and Son and wife; Forest county, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gundner; Green county, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Blumer; Jefferson county, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Garke; La Crosse county, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Dudley; Langlade county, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Decker; Dodge county, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clark; Oneida county, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McLaughlin; Polk county, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Clark; Price county, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Link; Racine county, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Cole; Rock county, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bonodiet; Sauk county, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Kruse; Taylor county, Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf Harder; Waushara county, D. L. Williams and daughter; Winnebago county, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Romberg; and Wood county, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Schmidt.

Today the winning delegates are at Madison from where they will go to Monroe tomorrow and pass through here Thursday evening for Beloit, to be the guests of the Line City Business Men's association at the Beloit Country club tomorrow evening. Many Janesville people will be in attendance at the gathering as well as many Rock county farmers, two hundred invitations having been sent to the residents of the rural communities. The Janesville party will leave on the 7 o'clock interurban car.

FORMER JANESVILLE BOY ELOPES AND IS MARRIED AT LUDINGTON, MICHIGAN

Word of the marriage of Harry P. Schumacher of Ludington, Mich., a former Janesville boy, to Miss Iva Estelle Bunker of Scottville, S. D., has been received here. The couple quietly slipped away and until after the nuptial vows had been tied did not inform their friends of the culmination of their romance. Schumacher is the son of Mrs. Augusta Schumacher, Linn street, and is well known here. At Ludington he is making up man and pressman on the Daily News, which W. V. Ward, also formerly of this city, is editor. Mr. and Mrs. Schumacher will reside at Ludington.

Daily Building

To be continually well, calls for food that contains elements that surely build up the whole system—body, nerves and brain.

Grape-Nuts

—made from whole wheat and malted barley—contains the full nutrient of the grain, including the mineral salts, so essential to balanced re-building.

Grape-Nuts, partially pre-digested, agrees splendidly with child or adult. Requires little work from the digestive organs and is quickly absorbed by the system, generally in about one hour.

Thousands have found a helping hand in Grape-Nuts food—

NAVAL HONORS ACCORDED BLUEJACKETS WHO GAVE LIVES FOR PEACE IN HAITI

Sailors firing volley over bluejackets' coffins.

Boston accorded naval honors to William Gompers of Brooklyn, N. Y., a nephew of Samuel Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor, and Carson Whitehurst of Norfolk, Va., both members of the crew of the U. S. S. Washington, who were killed on July 25 when some Haitian rebels resisted the landing of the American sailors at Port-au-Prince. After sailors had fired a volley over the flag-draped coffins on the pier at Charleston navy yard, Boston, the hearse were escorted through the city by a naval delegation and the bodies put on the train to be taken to relatives.

Visits Infrequent.

The greatest locust year is universally considered by men living today to have been in 1888. The next simultaneous appearance of the thirteen and seventeen year locusts is figured to take place in 2087, a consolation to the present generation, indeed. Many superstitions are recorded in connection with the appearance of the locust. One of the most popular is that which holds the figure on its wings, which resembles a W, to forecast war.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 18, 1875.—The melancholic days have come. Look out for them.
 The weather was quite September like this morning; cool, cloudy and dismal.
 Prairie chickens are being brought into the markets and are for sale at moderate prices.
 John C. Beers, of the first ward of this city, showed us a cabbage stock which contained twelve heads of cabbage which are all solid and entirely separate from each other. We believe they belong to the Wayman variety.
 Notwithstanding the black flying clouds, strong wind, cool atmosphere, and threatening rain, the Baptist Church Sunday school had their picnic at Pope's springs today, the steamer Belle making her regular trips during the day. Considering the unfavorable weather conditions there was a good attendance.
 The funeral services of the late Franklin Norcross were held at the residence of his son, Hon. Pliny Norcross this forenoon at ten o'clock. There was a large number present to pay their last tribute of respect to the deceased.
 Providence, Aug. 18.—President Grant remained at General Burnside's residence this morning. The rain prevented him from proceeding on his cruise on the bay. The clam bake will be served this afternoon, rain or shine. The president intends to leave at six o'clock for New York.

LATIN QUARTER HAS ITS OLD LIFE AGAIN

Since Return of Thousands of Soldiers Paris' Latin Quarter Resumes Its Old Galley.

Paris, August 17.—In the "Latin Quarter" of Paris, the return of some thousands of soldiers on leave of absence from the front has been like the day of judgment in cemetery. From mournful desolation, the streets, the cafes, the restaurants have taken on new life. Little midnights and artists' models have come down from their attic rooms in their improvised finery of Sundays and holidays, and proudly leaning on the arms of their students, soldiers, swarthy, paraded the Luxembourg Gardens and the streets of Montparnasse in radiant joy for the first time in a year.

For here, in the heart of the Latin Quarter, a great part of the population has always consisted of students in the various art schools, in the ancient university of the Sorbonne. In the schools of medicine, law and engineering, but in the college of France. With the outbreak of war it was as if a great plague had swept over the Quarter. Almost no men were left.

Now all is alive again in the Quarter. Tables in front of the cafes stretch out to the very legal limit of the awnings and beyond. In front of the cafes, in the parks, and especially on the trams and trains bound countryward, gay parties of artists in earth-stained regimentals and models in their bravest best celebrate the end of the fighting in the west. The Department has granted. There is something odd in the sight of a young soldier, a girl on his arm and a taxi-cab horn in the background, strapped on his back, off for a day at the joyous work of creation, after so many months of the grim work of death.

On the opposite bank of the Seine, on the heights of Montmartre, the scene created by the temporary homecoming of so many of the country's soldiers is very different, although no less animated. Here, many of the "permissionnaires," as the soldiers on leave are called, are seeing Paris for the first time. People of the country, inhabitants of small, provincial towns, whose means have never permitted them to visit Paris, seize the opportunity on their way back from the front to pass a day or two in the city. Some time their wives and families meet them in the capital, and together they make a pilgrimage to the points of interest of the ancient city. It is the hour for many French people to see France first.

The churches seem to be the most frequented of historic spots visited by these soldiers on their vacations. Notre Dame, the Madeleine, the new building of the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus on the top of Montmartre, overlooking not Paris alone but the whole Seine valley, are crowded from early morning until dark by long, shuffling lines of uniformed sightseers. Especially is this true of the Church of the Sacred Heart. So recently completed that thousands of Parisians have not yet visited it, the new cathedral is a point of interest not only because of its rare architectural beauty, but also because of the commanding position it occupies, whence a magic-carpet view of the city may be obtained. Within the darkened basilica is a flame of yellow stars of candle-light. Here come the men in the trenches to burn waxen offerings for the safety of their loved ones. To the right of the altar, behind the chancel rail, hangs a banner upon which is embroidered the legend: "Sacred Heart of Jesus save France!" Before the fire of the candles, and the silent altar and the banners, and back the soldiers of the church's lofty pillars, day long there are soldiers kneeling in prayer.

REPORTS SHOW WISCONSIN IS AN AMPLE PRODUCER

That Wisconsin is an ample provider is shown by the following, based upon the annual production recorded to federal reports, taking the usual number of persons, five, as constituting the average family. A generous measure of cereals also might be included, but is omitted for no data is available to show the proportion fed to livestock.

Amount Per Family.

Meat, pounds 444

Cheese, pounds 254

Butter, pounds 220

Potatoes, bushels 70

Cabbage, pounds 468

Eggs, dozen 103

Lumber—manufactured, feet . . . 4,000

Paper—manufactured, pounds . . . 1,600

Shoes—manufactured, pairs . . . 11

Orchard fruits, bushels . . . 11

Small fruits, quarts 23

Tobacco, pounds 100

Sugar, pounds 62

Condensed milk, pounds . . . 65

Lard, pounds 41

Peas, dozen cans 17

Sugar corn, dozen ears . . . 17

Dry peas, pounds 150

Our 320 flour and grist mills produce a total averaging seven barrels of wheat flour for each family, exclusive of rye flour, barley meal, buckwheat flour and corn meal.

It is evident, of course, that much of the wheat manufactured into flour is from other states; but a large quantity (34 per cent) of Wisconsin grown, and should occasion require, badger farmers could contribute the balance without difficulty.

INVESTIGATE FATE OF PLUMBING BILL ON SENATE'S ACTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Madison, Wis., Aug. 18.—Doubt that the Laing plumbing bill has been killed has become so insistent that the question is being investigated by Attorney General Owen. He has been asked for an opinion by the state board of health. The original bill passed the house nearly two weeks ago. Several amendments were offered in the senate and the bill was finally returned to the assembly in amended form, during the closing hours. The assembly rejected the amendments and returned the bill as it was originally passed by the house. In the hurry of the session there was no roll call on concurrence in the senate. The bill contains a clause relating to fees which has been interpreted as making it an appropriation measure, which requires a roll call. So much doubt as to the necessity of a senate roll call has been expressed that Dr. C. A. Harper submitted the question for a legal ruling.
